Jason equips leaders to activate the brainpower of their people to boost energy, deepen engagement, and supercharge performance. As a former leader in a Fortune 10 company, he understands the challenges leaders face each day to move people to action and inspire people to do their best.

Using the latest behavioral and brain research, Dr. Jones teaches leaders that high-performance cultures aren't produced by broad-scale, generic engagement programs. Rather, they are a result of a unique interaction between the employee and the manager. Dr. Jones calls this unique interaction, "ACTIVATE!" Recent brain studies reveal how leaders can literally "light-up" an employee's brain through techniques that stimulate fourteen regions responsible for motivation, focus, reasoning, processing, creativity, and emotional intelligence.

Jason shares a set of proven principles and techniques that will help any leader to activate a higher level of performance and potential within the people they lead.
